At the start buils in wheat had a slight advantage owing to scantiness of offerings, especially in the December delivery. Too much rain in Argentina and excessive heat in Australia were reported, and there was still uneasiness over drought in Kansas and elsewhere southwest. Absence of export demand, however, and a forecast of snow or other moisture for all states where dry weather has a drawback tended to weaken the market in the middle of the session. On the other hand, shorts were more disposed to cover in the late dealings, lightness of receipts drawing attention to possibility of a squeeze in obtaining supplies for ready settlement of December contracts here. Besides, Ohlo millers were said to be bidding to exporters for No. 2 hard winter wheat, which could be shipped back from Buffalo.

gave firmness to the corn market. Oats were relatively dull, although for the first time in months some oats were sold here to go south.

Buying of lard presumably against sales of cottonseed oil, appeared to have helped upturns in the provision market. WHEAT- CHICAGO PRICES,

A "Comfortable" Investment

ONE of our old clients describes Straus First Mortgage Bonds as "a comfortable investment." His reasons are: "They free me from worry, care, and management. I do not have to watch the market reports in fear of depreciation in value."

Pointed and true. But our client, in our judgment, has not laid enough emphasis on the most important feature of Straus Bonds. This feature is their rock-ribbed safety-safety assured by ample real estate security and earning power, and backed by our record of 39 years without loss to any investor.

They yield 6 and 7% and are in convenient denominations-$1000, $500, and $100. Call or write for
